At AcrossWorld we foster innovation around education and knowledge management in emerging markets. We believe that innovation is important now because we are facing a number of challenges. Globalization, the technological and knowledge revolutions, cultural debate and climate change are issues that face us all at some level. These issues pose challenges for the private sector, for public services and for governments and policy makers alike. Innovation is the key to improving or adding value to existing processes and products and the catalyst for new ideas in education technology and knowledge access.
